PSYCHOLOGY OF TEAM MANAGEMENT

As a leader, I cannot and am not supposed to work alone. I need a team besides (not under) me to get work done. But we are talking about humans here and hence the study of human behaviour in the context of the workplace and performance becomes mandatory. Whether it is the leader or the team member, everyone is different as a personality and if we can decode the psychology of why's and how's of work dynamics, it will be easy to work as a team as well as lead a team.

Besides the individual aspect, the team as a whole or as a unit need to be understood as well for the leader as well as team members individually. This is imperative for getting great team work and comradery as well as team performance. After all, we need to cater to conflict management as well.
